

PLAN BIG PROGRAM FOR RURAL LIFE CONFERENCE

Meeting Will Be Held During Week of January 23-28 at Radford.

RADFORD, Va., Jan. 15.—In a few days the full program of the rural life week conference, January 23-28, will be distributed. On this week's program a large number of the leading educators and representative citizens of Virginia have places. Among these are Dr. Henry Louis Smith, president of Washington and Lee University; Dr. J. A. Barnum, president of the V. P. L.; Dr. P. H. Anderson, president of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg; Professor John R. Hutcheson, director of the extension work of the V. P. L.; Dr. T. D. Eason, of the State Department of Public Instruction; Hon. M. P. Shawkey, for twelve years Superintendent of Public Instruction of West Virginia, and a large number of representatives from other colleges and high schools.

Miss Adele Clark, president of the League of Women Voters of Virginia; Mrs. M. M. Davis, State home agent, extension department V. P. L.; Mrs. Avery, of the Department of Public Instruction, Richmond; Mrs. John P. Vines, vice-president of the Federated Women's Clubs of Virginia; Dr. Mary E. Brydon, director Bureau Child Welfare, State Board of Health of Virginia; Miss Melville Moffett, dean of the Normal School at Radford; Mrs. Howard Gilmer, Pa-laski, and other strong and representative women will address the various meetings. Representatives of a large number of religious denominations in the western part of the State will speak at some time during the week. Professor George W. Guy, executive secretary of the Co-operative Education Association, and Mrs. Harry Semones, president of the Parent-Teachers Association, and Professor William E. Gilbert, secretary of the Appalachian School Improvement Foundation, will address the conference on community organizations and community work.

A number of receptions have been planned for the delegates. On Friday, January 27, a large number of high school students from the adjoining counties will attend the conference. Games, recreations and contests of various character have been arranged for these high school people.

SOCIALISTS TO GIVE POINCARÉ SUPPORT IN FOREIGN POLICY

return of Poincaré to power to receive their charges that he personally was responsible for the war. His partial failure as explained by the Petit Parisien may be attributed in part to the fact that the situation, although grave, cannot be compared to that existing in 1914 and 1915. The Chamber elected in 1919 comprises a majority known as the National bloc, which is in clear-cut opposition as regards internal policy to the Socialist radical group, which previously was the largest and most important group in the Chamber. M. Herriot, leader of the Socialist radical group in the Chamber, and M. Doumergue, leader of the corresponding group in the Senate, refused office, but assured M. Poincaré that he could count on their support on foreign policy. M. Sarraut, who held the portfolio of colonies under Briand, and who now is in Washington, belongs to this group, but it is taken for granted that he will retain his present office. M. Laffont, the new Under-Secretary of Posts and Telegraphs, also is a member of the Socialist radical group.

Sarraut to Remain.
At a meeting late this afternoon this party decided that M. Sarraut, having been charged with a delicate and complex mission in the national interest, should carry it out to the end, with the power to consult his friends on his return to Paris, regarding his remaining in the Cabinet.

Of the fourteen ministers four are Senators—Poincaré, Peyronnet, Strauss and Chéron, and ten are members of the Chamber of Deputies. All the under-secretaries are Deputies. All the groups forming the left side of Parliament are represented in the Cabinet; the Socialists and the Rightists are not represented.

After expressing the belief that M. Sarraut would not fail him, Premier Poincaré said: "I shall not advance the convocation of the Chamber, which is set for Thursday, as there are many things to do between now and then. "All the high commissioners in the previous Cabinet are suppressed and also four under-secretaries of State. This is for the purpose of showing from the beginning our sincere effort to practice economy."

French Participation in Doubt.
Although it is generally accepted that M. Poincaré told Lloyd George that France would be represented at the economic conference at Genoa, her participation is by no means accepted by the press as obligatory and inevitable. Several of the newspapers argue that as the Cannes conference was not completed, it was understood, if not formally recognized, that to quote the intrinsigant, "the first votes on the first questions were only given on condition that an agreement should be reached on all."

Sarraut Accepts Post.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 15.—M. Sarraut, head of the French arms delegation, today received an invitation from M. Poincaré, the new Premier, to continue in his present post of Colonial Minister, and at once accepted his acceptance.

"Star in the Window" Campaign by W. C. T. U.

[By United News.] CHICAGO, Jan. 15.—On the second anniversary of the birth of prohibition—Monday—the Woman's Christian Temperance Union will start a campaign to have blue flags with a white star in the center placed in a window of every home and business place where liquor is banned.

It will be known as the "star in the window" campaign. It is announced at national headquarters of the union.

Beneath the star will be the words "we are Americans we support the Constitution." It is the hope of the temperance union that the campaign will make so wide an appeal that within a short time there will be a star in every window in the land.

ship and a decision reached on the vacancy in the State Supreme Court. Interest here centers on the identity of the man who J. Turner Clement, of Chatham, will appoint in his own stead as Commonwealth's attorney of Pennsylvania, as soon as he assumes his new judicial position on February 10. By virtue of his new office, Mr. Clement will appoint his own successor, and the names of Major George Rison and D. T. Williams, of Chatham, are already being mentioned in connection with the vacancy.

HOUSE LEADERS PLAN TO BACK COMPROMISE ASSEMBLY ROAD BILL

(Continued From First Page.) Flood Byrd, of Winchester, is patron, and which provides for appointment of a commission of ten, representing the ten congressional districts of the State; virtually wiping out of the present highway system and instituting in its place an entire new system, will be introduced in the House.

As to the bill for a bond issue for road improvements, proponents of the movement are going ahead with their plans, despite adverse action of the House, which, on Thursday, went on record as pledging the people of Virginia that it would not authorize a bond issue for road or other improvements during the present session.

Roads Body Acts Today.
The matter of such bond issue and a bill providing for it will be given careful consideration by the executive committee of the Virginia Good Roads' Association at a meeting to be held in Murphy's Hotel today. The body will give its attention to every angle of the matter, with due regard for action of the House in its adoption of the Smithley resolution, and will report its recommendations to the convention of the Virginia Good Roads' Association, which meets in Murphy's Hotel Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week. Advocates of a bond issue for road improvements declare they are not in the least discouraged by the action of the House, which, they declare, amounts to nothing, asserting that it does not bind members of the House who voted for it. In the opinion of United States Senator Carter Glass, chairman for Virginia of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, asking the noon hour today he utilized paying tribute to former President Woodrow Wilson, the exercises start the campaign for Virginia quota of $20,000 of the proposed $1,000,000 fund for the foundation.

Speaker Richard L. Brewer, Jr., is expected to have the various House committees ready to be announced when the lower body meets at noon today. The committee, then organized, will find awaiting them a number of local and State-wide bills which already have been referred. The Senate committees, which were made public late Friday afternoon, will begin consideration of Senate bills with the opening of today's session.

Few Legislators at Capitol.
The Capitol, the two branches of the General Assembly and the grounds were virtually devoid of lawmakers yesterday. A few who remained in Richmond over the week-end sauntered in to their respective chambers, sat down at their desks and wrote letters back home and transacted other personal business. Others were to be seen in the hotel lobbies. Prominent among these was Senator G. Walter Mapp, of Accomac.

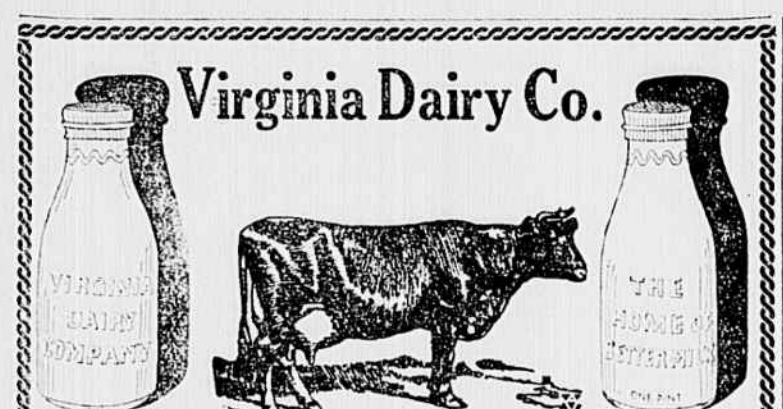

Among bills that are expected to be offered in one or the other of the two branches of the Legislature this week is one known as the pilotage bill. The measure, it is expected, will be spiritedly contested. It has been rumored that Governor Day would have a special message to pilotage, but confirmation of this was lacking as late as yesterday. When the General Assembly convenes at noon today, a joint resolution will be offered at the request of United States Senator Carter Glass, chairman for Virginia of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, asking the noon hour today he utilized paying tribute to former President Woodrow Wilson, the exercises start the campaign for Virginia quota of $20,000 of the proposed $1,000,000 fund for the foundation.

BAPTISTS GIVE $881.66 TO NEAR EAST RELIEF

One of Largest Single Contributions For Cause Comes From the Foreign Mission Board.
One of the largest single contributions which has come to the Near East Relief since its drive for $300,000 in Virginia started in December was received last night from the foreign mission board of the Baptist Church. The check was signed by George N. Balders, treasurer, and was for $881.66. State Chairman Oliver J. Sands explained today that this contribution represents the gifts of a number of Baptist churches who, anxious to their gifts go to the relief of thousands of suffering and oppressed children of martyred Christian Armenians, and yet wishing it to be credited with foreign mission contributions, sent their checks to the Near East Relief through the foreign mission board.

Prominent Women of the City Indorse the Made-In-Richmond Exposition and Movement

They Believe Chamber of Commerce Has Started a Great Idea Which Should Be Made a Permanent Institution and Which Is of Great Value in Educating Housewives That Richmond Products Are as Good or Better Than Others.

If we are ever going to hold in the South the Money that is made in the South we must begin to Buy the things that are produced in the South.
—Slogan of the Made-in-Richmond Exposition.

Mrs. Stuart W. Michaux will be remembered for the splendid work she did in the interest of the first Made-in-Richmond Exposition. In company with Mrs. Julian H. Meyers and Mrs. G. T. W. Kern, Mrs. Michaux canvassed the business houses on Broad Street, and, as a member of the committee, was successful in installing numerous Made-in-Richmond window exhibits along that great retail street. In a letter to the Made-in-Richmond Exposition, Mrs. Michaux says:

"It gives me pleasure to state that I consider the work of the Chamber of Commerce in bringing Richmond manufacturers before the Richmond public not only the best thing it has done in years to advance Richmond commercially, but, through the 'Made-in-Richmond' Exposition, it has been of inestimable value to the housewife in informing her of the fact that the 'Made-in-Richmond' products are, in most cases, not only as good as those made elsewhere, but a great deal better."

Mrs. Janet Stuart Durham, Treasurer of Housewives' League, thinks that the situation in Richmond and Virginia is somewhat analogous to Henry W. Grady's pronouncement against the old Southern system of depending upon another section to supply things needed in life and death. In writing to the Made-in-Richmond Exposition, Mrs. Durham says:

"I heartily believe in the principles back of the Made-in-Richmond campaign. The results of the policy of ignoring home industry is well described in an incident taken from 'A Builder of the New South,' by Winston.

"I attended a funeral once in Pickens County, Ga. It was a poor one-gallus fellow. They buried him in the midst of a marble quarry; they cut through solid marble to make his grave, and yet the little tombstone they put above his head was from Vermont. They buried him in the heart of a pine forest, and the pine coffin was imported from Cincinnati. They buried him within touch of an iron mine and yet the nails in his coffin and the iron of the shovel that dug his grave were imported from Pittsburgh.

"They buried him in the side of the best sheep-grazing country on earth and yet the wool in his coffin bands was imported from the North. The South did not furnish a single thing for that funeral but the corpse and the hole in the ground.

"There they put him away and the clouds rattled down on his coffin, and they buried him in a New York coat and a Boston pair
